

Tampa Bay Lodging Market: A High-Impact Destination

March 7, 2023 / By Hannah McManus , Angela Lahti

Hotel Market Overview

The greater Tampa Bay market area has experienced aggressive growth in the post-pandemic period, reinforcing the market’s position as a high-impact tourism destination. In January 2020, Visit Tampa Bay set a goal to reach one billion dollars in hotel-room revenue by year-end 2025, and this mission was accomplished by Hillsborough County three years ahead of schedule in 2022.

Record levels of gross tourist tax collections, a 6% tax levied on hotel room revenues, were also reported in both Hillsborough and Pinellas counties in 2022, far surpassing collections reported in 2019. Average daily rate (ADR) is the primary driver of rising hotel revenues, with the Tampa Bay market displaying unprecedented rate growth in the post-pandemic period.

Tampa Bay New Supply

Unlike other large gateway markets, Tampa Bay did not experience a slowdown of new supply, with roughly 7% of Hillsborough and Pinellas counties' nearly 48,000 guestrooms being added from 2020 through 2022. The following represent the market's most noteworthy additions:

- The Karol Hotel, St. Petersburg Clearwater, a Tribute Portfolio Hotel (123 keys, February 2020)
- Tru by Hilton St Petersburg Downtown Central Ave (132 keys, July 2020)
- Hotel Haya (178 keys, September 2020)
- JW Marriott Tampa Water Street (519 keys, December 2020)
- Aloft/Element Dual-Brand Hotel Tampa Midtown (226 keys, January 2021)
- Hyatt Place/Hyatt House Dual-Brand Hotel Tampa Downtown (345 keys, March 2021)
- AC Hotel by Marriott Clearwater Beach (144 keys, June 2022)
- Tampa EDITION (172 keys, September 2022)

Rising Rates

Contrary to most other major markets in this time period, demand in the Tampa market has largely kept pace with the increases in supply since 2020, as evidenced by steadily rising occupancy and ADR, pointing to Tampa Bay as one of Florida's premier destinations.

Downtown Tampa has become an alternative meeting and group destination to the long-established resort markets of South Florida, with the development of Water Street Tampa and the entrance of the Tampa EDITION and JW Marriott Tampa further enriching the walkability and appeal of the area surrounding the convention center. Given the market's status as a less-restrictive destination, several political, religious, and fraternal group events relocated their events to Tampa in 2020 and 2021, with many such groups returning to the convention center in 2022 given their prior success. The accessibility of the cruise port and international airport also enhances the greater Tampa Bay market area, with cruise attendance and airline passenger traffic counts steadily rebounding to pre-pandemic levels.

Healthy demand for hotels in the greater market and the area's attractiveness as a leisure, commercial, and meeting and group destination have led to significant rate and RevPAR growth in the post-pandemic period.

Other positive factors that bode well for the market include its acclaimed international airport, active cruise terminal, and reputation as an alternative meeting and group destination.
